Revival and Rise and Great Again - Temple of Literature - World Wide Blog - World Wide Reader Network (Computer Version)

"The Great Rejuvenation of the Chinese Nation", "The Rise of a Great Country", "The Strong Motherland", "Chinese Dream", "Two Hundred Years", "East Rise and West Fall", etc. are common slogans of the Chinese media and mainland China for more than ten years; and "Let America Great Again", abbreviated as MAGA, is the United States Of course, the penetration of common slogans on the media and hats is limited, and at least half of the people don't care or feel disgusted. As a witness to the Cultural Revolution, I am wary of all exciting slogans, but I also understand that most of the time, human beings can't do without them. Many people want world peace and common prosperity and progress for mankind. If the countries that grow up, return to and reproduce in the next generation are all strong and great countries, what's wrong or happy? I believe that most overseas Chinese have this mentality.

But frankly speaking, these are mostly the products of unrealistic or pathological emotional thinking.

"The Great Rejuvenation of the Chinese Nation" and "Let America Great Again" are two slogans that can be shouted, but the two are not compatible with each other. This is the conclusion from the perspective of fact and historical development. If we leave aside our own narrow subjective cultural position and look at the collision of these two great countries from the footsteps of the human process, we can relieve many individuals of their confusion, anxiety, anxiety, and even hysterical desires. Combing these two kinds of great "practices" with the trajectory of historical development, common civilizational values, common sense and rational logical thinking, you will find many interesting or thought-provinating phenomena. Everyone doesn't want individuals or groups to take a detour and go to death. Objectively analyzing and discussing these arduous journeys is a comfort to yourself, and may be an additional help or blessing to others.

The "Great Rejuvenation of the Chinese Nation" is rooted in traditional culture, but the "Chinese Nation" is a trendy thing that cannot be found in ancient books. When Chinese people were young, the vast majority of the elders of the family began to preach to them, telling them about the long glorious history of the family or forcing their children to do this and that in various harsh ways. What is said is that they can get a name for the future, become a dragon, become a phoenix, and be the ancestor. After going to school, national education was added, so that personal glory was tied to the rise and fall of the family and the country. In fact, this has formed a religious culture that suffocates the freedom of the human mind. The extensive accumulation of implementation results have killed most children's independent thinking ability. At the same time, it has become a national fashion and political correctness. No one dares to question, let alone correct it.

We should think about the connotation of "greatness" and the true feelings of the people. What is the difference between "the great rejuvenation of the Chinese nation" and "making America great again"? These two "greatness" have great differences and some historical connections, especially with the modern history of the European continent, including the religious reform, the Renaissance, the industrial revolution and the rise of Marxism-Leninism. Chinese should learn to look at China from the perspective of the world, instead of standing on the roof of Zijin City to observe or understand the evolution of the world. It is not a matter of course and easy to see the connotation of American greatness.

Since the founding of the United States, there have been few traditional religions (such as Catholicism, Orthodoxy and Islam) since the beginning, and the new Christian population has occupied the majority of the national composition. The trajectory of national development, with two sets of carriages of moral concepts and commercial reality, is constantly double-integrated and or disappearing. This is not a question of right or wrong, but a political reality that is constantly corrected and adjusted. The United States is one of the few countries in the world that can fully stand on its own and strive for development without external funding and blood transfusion. Isolationism is actually the main axis of the history of the new world of the United States, but the old world needs the United States too much. After becoming the GDP old for more than half a century, it was pushed to the role of the world police by countries with the same or similar moral concepts.

Perhaps many people in the United States and abroad think that GDP first, the navy spreading around the world, education and scientific and technological innovation leading the world, etc., are the greatness of the United States. Those are only superficial, and the real greatness of the United States lies in the relative superiority of the system, which is manifested in the mutual balance of constraints. There is room for voice and movement on the left or right. The culture of the old world often goes to extremes and desperately destroys opponents, which naturally brings a fierce rebound or revolution.

At least half of the people in the United States are disgusted with greatness, indifferentness. Allowing others to speak and having different opinions is one of the great characteristics of America. There has always been the concept of "special exception" countries inside and outside the United States. It is undeniable that this is indeed the case, which is determined by special natural conditions and political ecology. Many people can't understand the "interests and values of the United States" or the MAGA trend centered on Trump. The old world of the East and West mostly looks at the rise of conservative forces with mockery, including Chinese people who have lived abroad for many years.

If you can understand the above description, it is not difficult to understand the series of actions after Trump's come to power. From Trump's past video speeches, it can be seen that he obviously has a deep understanding of the essence of his own special exceptionalism and other countries' left-wing socialism. His deputy, Vice President Vance, recently spoke at the Munich Security Conference, reflecting the concerns of traditional American conservatives about the widespread spread of left-wing movements in Europe. In fact, the sharp left turn in the United States in the past few decades is also inextricably rooted in Europe's connection and influence.

Equality, inclusiveness, pluralism, globalization, environmental protection, racial equality, and feminism and many political slogans in recent years must be correct. There is literally no problem, and they are also the goals of the ideal society of mankind for thousands of years. American tradition has always included these slogans and operations. However, if you violate the Constitution at the expense of personal fundamental freedom, justice, fairness, justice and the progress of society as a whole, you will be in the devil.

The facts are indisputable. Behind many unquestionable beautiful slogans, evil human nature has been rampant, forming a huge black interest industry chain, affecting almost all social fields such as foreign aid, immigration resettlement, education and medical care, and workplace competition. Over the years, under the slogan of political correctness, absurd policies that violate common sense and basic logic have been forcibly promoted, and a large number of indiscriminate phenomena have spread in government, the military, the judiciary, education, medical care and public services at the expense of losing professionalism or industry standards. There are many such examples, such as the recruitment in the field of the Special Service and aviation management exposed. In the field of education, academic performance is not the main observation indicator, and a large number of other factors are forcibly used as the basis for assessment, which lowers the overall quality and competitiveness.

Perhaps some people fantasize that under the premise of ensuring the minimum quality requirements, priority can be given to the "disadvisable people" to achieve the ideal situation that society seems fair. In fact, most of these are impossible to achieve. Because the "weak" state of most people comes from their own factors (a few are exceptions), cultural traditions, or a non-competitive environment, etc., but these people are not necessarily kind or shameful. The leftist propaganda is that poverty is the fault of others, and these people are noble by nature, so China has a saying that the poor are "re-educated". Human beings must admit that the environment of birth and growth is not determined by human will, although the future path can change. The natural nature of human corruption is greed and incomperence, and most of them are not grateful for the benefits obtained by unjust means. From the criminal threshold of stealing more than 950 yuan to the rationalization of the mood of zero-yuan purchase, from the equality of some people's requirements to the self-deempt that their lives are more expensive than others, from a few women wearing a turban to requiring everyone to wear it together, ... and so on. I was also "re-educated" in the countryside at that time. I knew that in the poor class, the proportion of gangsters was much higher than that of other classes. Covering up the facts is the basic survival principle of the left that firmly misleads teenagers, both in China and abroad.

The rapid slide effect of human degradation was observed and discussed by the Reformers as early as 500 years ago, which is not a new thing.

Don't naively think that people will naturally have a sense of conscience, logical thinking or a sense of social responsibility when they get the benefits they don't strive for. Therefore, a one-size-fits-all forced promotion will not produce real fairness, but will kill more spiritual freedom and creativity. As a country, South Africa has long become a living example. More than 20 years ago, I witnessed the great changes in South Africa. The latest example is the transformation that took place in the European continent. This article describes the overall social phenomenon, not the individual or artificial so-called "Lei Feng spirit".

In addition to shaping false "heroic figures" and "collective poverty alleviation", mainland China also makes good use of GDP to measure the road to great rejuvenation, which has become an indicator on the lips of many Chinese. With the support of investment and trade policies of the United States and the West, China's economy has made rapid progress for more than 20 years, and the closest point to the GDP of the United States is 2021. But after the breakdown of relations with the West, China's economy began to reverse. After that, they began to distance again. Whether China can enter the great revival by relying on GDP, regardless of the basic freedom, justice, fairness, justice and progress of society as a whole, is worth learning from history. At that time, Japan's GDP was only one-eighth of that of the Qing Dynasty, but the former relied on the relative superiority of the system to defeat the largest naval power in East Asia.

The per capita GDP of the United States has now exceeded 80,000 US dollars. The GDP per capita of the United States has always been comparable to that of major Western powers. However, in the past ten years, they have been separated. They are all about 30-50% lower than the GDP of the United States, and there is a tendency to expand. If the United States allows the left-wing trend to continue to overflow, it will undoubtedly follow in the footsteps of Europe in the near future. The current war between Russia and Ukraine is essentially Russia's view of Europe's decline, incompetence and the dilemma of being kidnapped by the left-wing trend. Imagine the NATO powers of Britain, France, Germany, Italy and the West, which also have nuclear weapons, whose economic volume crushes Russia dozens of times, but refuses to contribute sincerely. This is the main factor in the delay of the war. Trump asked the defense expenditure of these countries in the region to reach 5% of the expenditure, which is to the point. We can't just talk about morality and play with words. Europe should indeed wake up.

The old nest of the leftist trend is in Europe, which has a long history. In the end, the climax of communism or socialism a century ago swept across Eurasia and reached its peak in the middle of the last century. It was not until the 1990s that the Soviet Union and the Eastern European bloge had come to an end. While Marxism-Leninism gradually became popular, the leftists in Europe and the United States tried their best to draw a line with them. There have been many explanations, which mean that the leftists of the West and the leftists of communist countries are two things. The fact is that the leftists have long been influenced by Marxism-Leninism, and they all like radical slogans and ethetic utopian society. From the big pot of rice, to the pursuit of great unification, to globalization or the community of human destiny, and so on. Once these people come to power, they will definitely bring or amplify falsehood, corruption, fraud, suffering, and eventually turn into a dictatorial, authoritarian and oppressive society.

The history of the development of Christianity in the United States, Europe, Russia and may have enlightened the "great revival" of the "Chinese Dream". Not only GDP, but also spiritual freedom and liberation are the real rise and revival. Unfortunately, compared with the United States, Europe, Japan, South Korea and Taiwan, the mainland still has a long way to go, which cannot achieve the basic freedom of citizens and the practical purpose of establishing a just, fair and just society. All the guns will only be in the flank. Externally, the Communist Party of China relies on the expansion of the South China Sea, the Belt and Road Initiative, the export of fentanyl raw materials and related synthetic equipment, and the establishment of fraud parks. The method is either cheating or plagiarism, and even by doing anything to achieve one's goals. Whether it is technology misuse or false boasting of external propaganda, it has become its usual trick. The whole world has understood the connotation of Chinese greatness and rise. The key is that the Marxism-Leninist communist ideal has long been stinking all over the street, and there is no need to write it.

In response to the rise of China, the conservative forces in the United States have finally returned, which is a reality that almost all "Chinese dreams" or "a big game of chess" have never expected by the designers of the "great revival". The greatness of the United States is not the elimination of politically correct slogans such as equality, inclusiveness, diversity, globalization, environmental protection, racial equality, and feminism, nor the blocking of the Internet and banning the opposition party, or the civil war that the Communist Party of China is thinking about day and night. The United States is still a country of freedom of speech and tolerance. But tolerance is not the same as supporting illegality. The measures of the conservative forces will usher in stormy opposition or criticism. Only countries that pursue unification and their subjects will feel panic or civil unrest. Most Americans will be calm, because Americans have votes to correct excessive manipulation or deviation. The separation of powers, the four-tiered government structure and the independent judicial media system in the United States ensure the integrity of the constitution and the normal operation of the system. The American system is not perfect, and the people do not recognize the existence of perfect people. This consensus is also one of the great connotations.

The United States is well aware that true greatness is not just a slogan. It must correct internal mistakes and make appropriate external adjustments to cope with the encroachment and subversion of the evil Axis powers. Trump's latest Russia-Ukraine policy, the requirements for Canada, Panama, Greenland, and Israel's Gaza corridor, have received great controversy and criticism, and I do not fully agree with it. Whether specific measures can be achieved still needs to be observed. But his big game of chess strategy has been formed, and it is too early to draw a conclusion now. One thing is worth affirming, North America and the United States, Europe and the metropolises of Japan, South Korea and Taiwan have made corresponding adjustments in the face of Trump's pressure. Looking back on the history of World War II and the subsequent evolution of the triangular relationship between the United States and the Soviet Union, the trend of concentrating forces, differentiation and encircling the evil Axis countries has become obvious. Since Taiwan and the South China Sea are the inevitable path of the great Chinese rejuvenation that has been advocated, they may also become weaknesses and traps. Will we accept it? The collision point of the great revival and the great future again may break out here.
